A Message From Seminar Leader, Julie Compton

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

JULIE COMPTON is a highly experienced educator and practitioner with proven expertise working directly with challenging students exhibiting repetitive, difficult behavior. Her extensive experience across time and grade levels gives her an incredibly unique perspective. The transparency with which she approaches teachers makes her very relatable and trustworthy. Julie presents in a way that gets to the heart of the matter and addresses repetitive disruptive behaviors in the classroom in a way that improves learning and relationships. You will walk away with highly practical strategies you can immediately implement in your classroom.

Dear Colleague:

Just when you thought being a teacher couldn't get more challenging, along comes months of pandemic-related disruption. Students who previously struggled with behavior are disrupting our classrooms more than ever, and some of our students who were manageable before are now struggling to make school "work" for them. For these reasons and more, we seem to be experiencing new levels of challenging behavior that repeatedly disrupt your academic instruction time. If all of this sounds familiar to you, I invite you to attend this highly practical seminar that will provide you with strategies you can use immediately to reclaim your valuable time with students.

For so many of our students, recurring challenging behaviors are very often a by-product of trying to navigate an increasingly complex and complicated world. This seminar is designed to provide you with practical strategies that will help you meet your students where they are and more easily create an environment to help them recover and regain their footing. We will identify ways to help our students replace their repetitive maladaptive behaviors with more effective ways of getting their needs met. The skills presented were gained through years of practical experience as a classroom educator and from decades of interactions with highly skilled educators over the years. I have had the privilege of seeing these strategies successfully transform resistant learners into motivated learners, and I can't wait to share them with you!

My goal for our day together is for you to leave the seminar with many new, practical tools, resources, and strategies to help you address the recurring and challenging student behaviors that threaten to stop your teaching, interfere with students' learning, and steal your joy as an educator. Please join your colleagues and me for an exciting day filled with practical and creative strategies for changing the lives of your students and refilling your teacher toolbox.

Sincerely,

Julie Compton

P.S. You will leave this seminar with dozens of practical ideas and an extensive digital resource handbook to help you implement the strategies in your classroom right away!

"This seminar is designed to provide you with practical strategies that will help you meet your students where they are and more easily create an environment to help them recover and regain their footing."

What Your Colleagues Say About Julie Compton

"So many new skills and discussion topics to take back to school and to students!"

– Danielle Mount, School Counselor

"There were many concepts discussed that come up regularly in my classroom/school. These tools will be helpful in dealing with challenging behaviors."

– Shawn Jones, Middle School Teacher

"Very informative. Lots of great ideas and validation of some things I'm already doing."

– Kyndal Shockley, Teacher

"I appreciated the opportunity to visit with Julie about particular situations we are dealing with in the classroom. She gave excellent suggestions and I feel I have a variety of tools to take back with me to use in the classroom on Monday morning. Thank you!"

– Kristi Cook, 2nd Grade Teacher
