Practical Ideas and Strategies

Co-teaching and teacher collaboration are proven strategies for helping students with diverse backgrounds, such as English Language Learners, achieve academic success. This practical seminar provides a step-by-step guide to make an ELL co-teaching program work! In this fast-paced and highly practical day, Kathy Perez, an experienced teacher and co-teaching expert, will share proven, research-based strategies that will enable you to maximize the positive impact of your co-teaching partnership. Come and discover the essential components for a successful co-teaching program: learn practical ways to define your roles, a variety of co-teaching approaches, ways to plan and deliver instruction, as well as how to make the most of each teacher's strengths. The emphasis will be on creative and time-efficient strategies you can use in your ELL co-teaching program!

You will leave this seminar with a wide variety of strategies and an extensive digital resource handbook to help you put the ideas to use immediately in your classroom.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Kathy Perez

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

Kathy Perez is an acclaimed teacher and national presenter who specializes in co-teaching English Language Learners and creative approaches to teaching diverse students. She integrates effective strategies and research with passion and insight from her own extensive co-teaching experience. This innovative and interactive seminar is loaded with teacher-tested materials and activities you can use immediately and share with others. As a dynamic presenter, Kathy has the experience to guide both novice and veteran teachers through an informative day filled with practical, ready-to-use ideas and strategies.

Kathy knows firsthand the daily challenges teachers face and will give you dozens of methods to address those challenges in your co-taught ELL classroom.

Dear Colleague:

As both English language specialists and general education teachers, we have the same hope for our students: that they are able to perform to the best of their abilities each and every day. In today's society, we face many challenges as we strive toward this vision of success for our students. Co-teaching is an instructional approach that puts two professionals together to share their expertise to greatly increase the academic achievement of students. This approach will enhance your own teaching skills, make it easier to match learning styles to students and most importantly, provide your ELLs with a richer and more effective learning environment.

This seminar is designed to help you create or refine your own ELL co-teaching program. We will discuss how to build and maintain positive and productive working partnerships, ideas for creative scheduling, identifying the roles of each team teacher, and much, much more! I will share dozens of ideas and techniques to provide you with classroom-tested methods, activities and strategies you can use immediately to support ELL students.

Experience shows that students are not the only ones who gain from co-teaching. It is a powerful and rewarding model that can have significant benefits for teachers as well. I invite you to join me for a day to help you start or make the most of your current co-teaching program with ELLs so everyone can reap the benefits of this research-based and very practical model of teaching.

Sincerely,

Kathy Perez, EdD

P.S. I guarantee you will leave this seminar re-energized and armed with ready-to-use tools that will make a tremendous difference for your English Language Learners!

"I will share dozens of ideas and techniques to provide you with classroom-tested methods, activities and strategies you can use immediately to support English Language Learners."
