Practical Ideas and Strategies

In a decades long attempt to maximize academic gains in many schools, play in early education was pushed out or greatly reduced. However, research increasingly recognizes a balance that includes purposeful play as vital for developing stronger academic and social-emotional skills in young learners.

In this NEW, innovative and engaging seminar by CAROLYN MCMAHON, you will learn proven strategies to make best use of purposeful play-based learning in your Preschool through Kindergarten classroom. Explore play as a foundation of readiness skills for literacy, success in developing a mathematical mindset, and methods to integrate the science standards through focused questioning, experiments, and exploring. This workshop will encourage activities to build vital language and social skills. The focus will be on practical, age-appropriate strategies, materials and creative opportunities you can easily incorporate in your Preschool or Kindergarten program. Join Carolyn for this idea-packed seminar, filled with numerous practical strategies and ideas for catching up and increasing students' academic and social-emotional growth through purposeful play.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Carolyn McMahon

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

CAROLYN McMAHON is a high-energy teacher with years of experience in early childhood and kindergarten classrooms, and as an elementary librarian. She is a sought after national presenter who is known for her interactive and highly practical seminars. She is the co-author of several books including the Wee Can series and materials used in classrooms throughout the United States, as well as PURPOSEFUL PLAY-BASED LEARNING: Increase Students' Academic Progress and Social Emotional Growth (Preschool, Pre-K, and Kindergarten), the digital handbook you will receive at her seminar. Carolyn's wealth of experience, passion for young learners and sense of humor are evident in her seminars.

Dear Colleague:

I am very excited to have the opportunity to share PURPOSEFUL PLAY-BASED LEARNING: Increase Students' Academic Progress and Social Emotional Growth with you in this brand new seminar for Preschool, Pre-K, and Kindergarten teachers. Play-Based Learning has become one of my passions as I work with children. One of my beliefs that I repeatedly share with colleagues is, "Quality Play for Quality Children" will make the difference in a young child's learning experiences in the classroom. Literacy, Reading, Language Development, Writing, Math, and Science are the starting points for success through play-based strategies and activities that will catch children up and provide more successful accelerated learning.

Many of us have experienced the "I Can't" syndrome with our students. For the past 30 years I have reminded students, "There are no I can't's... only I can't yet's." Let me suggest and model multiple ways to optimize your classroom culture so students are ready to work and play together. Learn practical self-regulation methods that are workable solutions to help students catch up both emotionally and academically. Through quality and strategic questioning I will model and use play-based activities to their full potential so that your classroom will be a place of encouragement through communication and problem-solving in literacy, math and science.

Please join me for this full day of hands-on, "hear-it-today-use-it-tomorrow" activities I have designed that will encourage active, developmentally appropriate play-based learning for our early learners. The information I will share is research-based. The emphasis will be on practical strategies, ideas, and activities.

Throughout our day I will encourage you to embrace my favorite quote: "There are no I can't's... only I can't YETs!" with your students in this upcoming year.

Sincerely,

Carolyn McMahon

P.S. YOU are the Play-Based Learning Experts ... you know how to make learning a success through play, encouraging creativity, developing self-regulation, and observing social emotional growth as we catch our youngest learners up through quality play! Your digital handbook will include all my best ideas, strategies and lessons that you can use immediately.

"Please join me for this full day of hands-on, 'hear-it-today-use-it-tomorrow' activities I have designed that will encourage active, developmentally appropriate play-based learning for our early learners."

What Your Colleagues Say About Carolyn McMahon

"Thank you for sharing your experience, expertise and activity ideas. I love that I am leaving today with ideas, songs and activities that I can use in my classroom tomorrow. I appreciate that you included books as a literary links, songs and hands on activities to reach many different learners."

"This was outstanding! Carolyn is knowledgeable, energetic, and inspiring! And so valuable to have a presenter who is in the trenches and can provide such useful and realistic strategies and who obviously LOVES what she does! Thank you, Carolyn!"

"This was an amazing seminar from start to finish! Lots of great information with all questions answered! Carolyn has wonderful enthusiasm and an obvious love for learning and teaching."

"I honestly believe that Carolyn surpasses her previous STELLAR rating every single time I am with her! What a gifted teacher and presenter. Thank you!"
