Featuring Two of the Nation's Top Co-Teaching Experts

Sonya Heineman Kunkel is an outstanding educator with more than 35 years of experience working with students with disabilities. Sonya specializes in strategies and modifications for the general and special education classroom as well as collaborative techniques with an emphasis on Co-Teaching. She is featured in the video series, Using Co-Teaching to Increase Learning for All Students, Grades 6-12, and has been honored with many awards including Educator of the Year in her state for her dedication and passion for teaching her students. Sonya is well known for her practical, cutting edge strategies and brings a sense of humor, enthusiasm, and inspiration to her highly organized workshops.

Yamiley Jean-Simon is an experienced Co-Teacher, presenter, and leader. Yamiley first started utilizing Co-Teaching strategies in inclusive classrooms as a special education teacher. She experienced such effective results that she continued additional training to become the district's Co-Teaching trainer. Over the years, she has collected a wide variety of highly effective strategies and tactics to leverage the Co-Teaching partnership in a wide variety of classrooms. As a Special Education leader, Yamiley enjoys helping teachers learn her classroom-tested strategic supports tailored maximize student growth and success.
