Practical Ideas and Strategies

As academic standards and grade-level classroom expectations have increased, the needs of students with special needs have grown more diverse. Consequently, the necessary supports for students with disabilities has become ever more important. Many educators struggle in determining the most appropriate supports each student may need. In this seminar, you will learn how to identify the most appropriate strategies for more effectively enabling students to be most successful across diverse learning environments. Experienced special educator and outstanding national presenter PETRA NELSON will share a comprehensive approach to differentiation strategies, deepen your understanding of appropriate accommodations, and help improve your implementation of effective modifications. You will leave with dozens of highly practical, effective strategies and an extensive digital resource handbook to help improve your effectiveness in meeting the needs of your students with special needs.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Petra Nelson

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

PETRA NELSON is a highly experienced special education teacher, national and international presenter. With decades of grades PreK-12 experience, Petra has worked in self-contained, resource and co-taught special education settings. She has worked with thousands of teachers and administrators in all areas of special education, including specialized instruction, behavior support, inclusive practices, transition programs, differentiation, multi-tiered system of supports, administrative procedures and co-teaching implementation. Petra knows firsthand the challenges facing special educators in supporting students with disabilities. She is passionate about providing real, practical, strategies for helping students make maximum gains through meaningful accommodations, modifications and differentiated instruction. Petra is also the author of Special Educators: Accelerate Progress for Students with IEPs By Making the Best Use of Differentiation, Accommodations, and Modifications the extensive digital resource handbook you will receive at the seminar. You will leave this seminar re-energized and equipped to accelerate the success of your students with disabilities. The emphasis will be on practical approaches that are evidence-based, highly effective and impactful, while also being efficient, saving you valuable teacher time.

Dear Colleague:

In my years as a special educator I have learned that teaching students with special needs is not easy. We are charged with supporting rigorous instruction that provides access and accelerates learning. But given the ever-increasing demands on our time and resources, we want and need approaches that are powerful, evidence-based, and impactful, while also being efficient in relation to our time investment.

I am excited to share with you outstanding ways to differentiate your instruction and determine appropriate accommodations and modifications that remove educational barriers and accelerate the success of your students with disabilities. I want to help you accelerate the progress of your students with special needs and to maximize their success. During this unique seminar, my goal is to provide you with numerous strategies you can immediately incorporate into your practice. I want to share practical, timesaving ways to increase your impact on students' academic and behavioral success across educational settings.

The emphasis will be on effective ways of determining appropriate accommodations and modifications that remove learning barriers for your students with special needs. Actively explore evidence-based differentiated instruction practices that will support and accelerate student learning and strengthen the impact of your instruction. Learn practical ways to increase students' engagement and responsibility for their own learning. Gain outstanding, proven strategies for accelerating the progress of your students through differentiation, accommodations, and modifications!

Join your colleagues and me in this fast-paced day designed specifically for educators supporting students with special needs. You will leave this seminar excited, refreshed, and ready to implement high-impact practices and ideas to make a marked difference in the lives of the students you serve.

Sincerely,

Petra Nelson, Ed.D.

P.S. You will leave this seminar with many practical techniques and strategies to help you better support your students with special needs across all educational settings.

"I am excited to share with you outstanding ways to differentiate your instruction and determine appropriate accommodations and modifications that remove educational barriers and accelerate the success of your students with disabilities."
