This idea-packed seminar combines the latest research and the best Occupational Therapy practices to help your students be more successful in either a traditional or virtual setting.

In this engaging seminar, you will gain a variety of practical, usable ideas to become more effective in your school-based Occupational Therapy practice. WENDI TRUMMERT, school-based Occupational Therapist and program developer, will share proven ideas you can immediately implement to enhance your Occupational Therapy practice.

You will leave feeling more confident and empowered to have a greater impact on the students and teachers you work with in grades Pre K-12. You will also leave this seminar with an extensive Occupational Therapy digital resource handbook.

A Message From Seminar Leader, Wendi Trummert

Uniquely Qualified Instructor

WENDI TRUMMERT is a passionate school-based Occupational Therapist and outstanding presenter. She is well-known for developing a collaborative service delivery model in her schools, working alongside teachers and teams to create highly engaging, and effective motor interventions for all students. Based on her extensive expertise and experience, Wendi believes that motor learning development is an essential component to a quality educational experience and enjoys sharing her expertise with colleagues in outstanding seminars. She is also the author of School-Based Occupational Therapists: Using Motor Learning Development Strategies to Increase School Success, the extensive digital resource handbook each participant will receive.

Dear Colleague:

In my 19 years as an Occupational Therapy practitioner, I've seen incredible increases in the demands of students and educators alike. As therapists, we offer a very unique perspective about how children learn. While our schools are increasing academic demands and limiting opportunities for movement, we understand that good sensory-motor development is essential for children to learn, self-regulate and behave at their highest level of ability, even if they are learning online.

There is a strong correlation between improved motor development and self-regulation skills, and the academic achievement that teachers are feeling the pressure to meet. I believe that the more fun school is, the greater students will be able to achieve. My goal for our day together is to provide you with a fresh, new way of looking at how motor development impacts school performance. This seminar is designed to put realistic, front-line solutions to common problems into the Occupational Therapists' hands.

I promise you an engaging day filled with down-to-earth conversation and meaningful information that will help you transform your practice and bring fun back to your professional life. Most importantly though, teachers and parents alike will sing your praises as their students experience less stress and greater success as a result of your role as a school-based Occupational Therapist. Plan to leave this seminar "fired up" and ready to return to your school or distance learning program with new ideas and a new energy to deliver the most effective therapy services to your students!

I look forward to meeting you at the seminar!

Sincerely,

Wendi Trummert, DrOT, OTR/L

P.S. As a practicing Occupational Therapist, I know just how valuable your time is. My focus will be on sharing practical strategies that you'll be excited to implement.

"My goal for our day together is to provide you with a fresh, new way of looking at how motor development impacts school performance."
